

I think it's unfair that the big companies can push out the little providers. I like my little ISP (MCN.ORG). It gives me good service and part of my money goes back to the county school system. If and when DSL comes to where I'm at I'll get it, but I want it from MCN, where I actually know the people.